

Michaël BISCH (MD) is Hospital Practitioner in Psychiatry and Addiction Medicine; and Head of the Addiction Medicine Department at the University Psychiatric Hospital of Nancy.

His department (CSAPA, ELSA, HDJA, Consultations) manages the care of substance use disorders, gambling, gaming, sexual addictions of adults and young people, and promotes specialized prevention interventions and research, especially in prisons.

He is managing Addiction Medicine teachings at the Lorraine University; administrator of the Learned Alcoholology Society, general secretary of the RESPADD (national hospital network for the prevention of addictions) and leads a regional committee for harm reduction in prisons.